INDIAN WOMAN SAVED FROM DEATH PENALTY

Maude Lowther Sentenced To Life in Marysville Reformatory Today

PLEADED GUILTY

Judge Starn Says Woman Was Led to Act

WOOSTER, O., Dec 9.—Saved from the electric chair after entering a plea of guilty to general charges of homicide, Maude Lowther, quarter-blood Indian girl, today was sentenced to life imprisonment without hope of pardon for the murder of her lover's wife Mrs. Clara Smith, near Ashtabula, on May 29, 1929.

Common Pleas Judge George A. Starn of Wayne-co who heard evidence in the housemaid's retrial following her guilty plea, returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment

FOUND GUILTY

Last June Mrs. Lowther was found guilty of the murder charges in Ashtabula-co and was sentenced to die in the electric chair, the first woman in Ohio to receive the death penalty. An appeals court decision ordered a retrial on the grounds of jury prejudice.

Mrs Lowther will spend the remainder of her life at the Marysville reformatory She is expected to be taken to the institution late this week.

The convicted girl, facing the prospect of death in the electric chair as she entered the courtroom to hear the decision, brightened as the judge neared the end of his 40 minute verdict when it became apparent that she would not receive the death penalty

REPLIED "NO"

Called before the bench and asked if she anything to say before the sentence was pronounced, Mrs. Lowther answered grimly:

"No."

Although declaring himself in favor of capitol punishment Judge Starn stated that it was his belief that Mrs Lowther was not responsible for her acts and that she was a victim of the plot and plans of her electrocuted sweetheart, Tilby Smith.

ESCAPES CHAIR

Maude Lowther, Indian girl, today was saved from death in the electric chair for the death of the wife of her paramour, Tilby Smith, who has paid the supreme penalty. Mrs. Lowther was sentenced to life imprisonment without chance for pardon by Judge Starn of Wayne-co

BANDITS ROB CINCI. BANK

Men Armed With Revolvers Obtain Between $5,000 and $6,000 Today.

CINCINNATI, O. Dec. 9 --Armed with revolvers, four bandits held up eight employes of the Avondale branch of the Peoples Bank & Savings company of Cincinnati, rifled the cages and escaped with between $5,000 and $6,000 in currency today.

Entering the bank shortly after it opened, the leader confronted Jim Flanagan, manager, while two others took positions in front of the cages. One bandit remained outside at the wheel of the automobile with its engine running.

Drawing his gun, the leader informed Flanagan, "It's a stickup. We want the money" Simultaneously the seven other employes were forced to surrender under the guns and lined against the wall back of the cages Here they remained under guard while the three cages were rifled of their cash.

JUDGE BROWN TELLS C. OF C. OF CONDITIONS

Economical, Financial and Political Condition Stressed In Talk

41 ARE PRESENT

County Organizations Praised for Their Work

"The Present Economical, Political and Financial Condition of the Nation and the Outlook for the Future" was discussed in a very interesting way at the Chamber of Commerce meeting at Hanley's Tearoom Tuesday evening by Probate Judge E. A. Brown. Forty-one members of the organization heard Judge Brown's talk.

"The first thing I will discuss is the condition of our own city and county in the way of employment. During the past week, as chairman of the county's unemployment committee, I have had 46 applications of good family men who are out of work. Most of these men were husking corn in an effort to aid their families but when corn husking ceased they were thrown out of work. Many of them are in dire circumstances. All who came to me were willing to work and were anxious to get any kind of a job that they might provide their families with the necessities of life," Judge Brown said in beginning his address.

WORK ON ROADS

"Ten of them were sent out to widen the highway on route 56, beginning at the Jones farm and coming toward this city. Probably in a short time others will be sent out to do the same kind of work, and some will be given work on a bridge in the county," he continued. Pickaway-co's situation is handled as capably and efficiently as in any county in Ohio. The Red Cross has been doing excellent work in the county outside Circleville and in this city the Benevolent Association has been doing wonders, according to the speaker.

STRESSES TEACHING

Judge Brown next stressed the need of an extensive program in the public schools of the nation where civic government is taught. The need of the school curriculum including this important topic was never more imperative than it now is, he said.

"The fact that the Congress of the nation, not yet completely organized, has thrown hundreds of bills dealing with the prohibition question in the hopper of both houses is a disgrace to the entire United States."

Judge Brown said, "It is true that the present prohibition law, as it now stands, is a failure but the fault is not in the law but in its enforcement"

Mr. Brown then turned to prosperity of the nation. "Some writers say that prosperity will return at the beginning of 1932 Others say it will be found the latter part of 1932 and others say that maybe 1933 and maybe not even then. No one knows when prosperity is coming back," the speaker stated.

The general assembly of Onio was the next point of Judge Brown's address when he said that Ohio would be better off if a general assembly did not meet for three years

The entire situation is summed up in just one paragraph, according to Judge Brown, and that is the preamble to the Constitution of the United States which he said very few people can truthfully say they have lived up to

PROFESSOR FACES TRIAL

MRS. JENNIE KANE — WHERE MRS. KANE DROWNED — PROF. ELISHA KANE

The sea took an important part in the murder trial of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, charged with the murder of his pretty wife. It is charged that Prof. Kane willfully drowned his wife, Jennie Graham Kane, while bathing at Grandview Beach, in the Chesapeake Bay. Both are shown above.

The professor claims Mrs. Kane slipped off a rock and was drowned.

Ocean Is Silent Witness Against Professor Kane

HAMPTON, Va, Dec. 9.—A silent witness has appeared in the court room here where Professor Elisha Kent Kane, 3rd, is being tried for the murder of his wife, Jenny Graham Kane.

It is a witness summoned by neither prosecution nor defense, answering to no roll call, bearing no name. Yet the testimony of this witness thus far has been the most damaging to which the inscrutable University of Tennessee professor has had to listen.

That witness is—the sea.

Through the lips of human givers of testimony, the sea has spoken, furnishing graphic details of the death of the pretty young brunette who was forcibly held beneath the water at Grandview beach by her powerful husband, according to the state.

Professor Kane has blamed his wife's drowning on the treachery of the sea, saying the current carried Mrs. Kane beyond her depth before he could reach her.

"A floating object would move up the beach toward Old Point Comfort, not out to sea," declared Chambers.

At the time of Mrs. Kane's drowning there was an offshore breeze, but it was so mild that Captain T. C. Rollins, clam tonger who heard the woman's scream and saw her sink beneath the waves, hesitated to dignify it by recognition as a breeze, at all.

He said also the two figures he saw on September 11, were standing but waist deep in water at the time the woman shrieked. Her voice sounded like "some one who was hurt."

TAX INCREASE WOULD TOUCH EVERY POCKET

Hoover's Plan for More Revenue Explained in Budget Report

DEBT 3½ BILLIONS

'Nuisance' Tax Would be Resumed in Plan

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A two-year tax increase that will dig deeply into every American pocket was proposed to Congress by President Hoover today when he submitted the new budget disclosing estimated treasury deficits of $3,630,000,000 for the current and next fiscal years

The president recommended putting federal taxes back on the 1924 basis. The increases would be applicable to this year's incomes.

Simultaneously, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon supplied the details of the administration's plan. It really goes far beyond the 1924 tax law by proposing the revival of some old, and the addition of some new "nuisance" taxes, applicable to telephone and telegraph messages, bank checks, etc.

REVIVE "NUISANCE"

Income and corporation taxes would go sharply upward, while for those who escape these would be the "nuisance" taxes affecting the daily business and diversions of almost every citizen. An increase in the cigarette tax and the tax on small-priced admission tickets probably would assure that no one could totally escape contributing to the federal government.

Normal income tax rates would be 2, 4 and 6 per cent, instead of 1 1-2, 3 and 5 per cent as at present, and surtaxes would begin with 1 per cent at $10,000, graduating upward to 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000. The present maximum surtax is 20 per cent.

LOWER EXEMPTIONS

Exemptions would be lowered, too, in order to bring some 1,700,000 citizens back into the income tax paying class.

The corporation tax would be increased from 12 to 12 1-2 per cent, while the estate tax would go back to the 1921 level of 1 per cent on $50,000 graduating upward to 25 per cent on amounts in excess of $10,000,000.

The miscellaneous taxes would include manufacturers' tax on automobiles, radios, phonographs, auto trucks, and accessories.

"We cannot maintain public confidence nor stability of the federal government," the president said in his budget message, "without undertaking some temporary tax increases.

"I recommend that Congress provide for an increase in taxation for a definite limited period and upon the general plan . . of the revenue act of 1924, with such changes as may be appropriate in the light of altered conditions.

"It is proposed that this increase shall be definitely terminated two years from next July.

"This plan, it is estimated, will

RENICK TO AID CARPER YOUTH; FACES MURDER

Local Attorney on Defense Staff in Fairfield-co Murder Case

IS SET FOR JAN. 18

Cunningham May Not Try Case; Faces Charge

Tom A. Renick, local attorney, will assist in the defense of Sesco Carper, Saltcreek-twp youth, when he goes on trial for the first degree murder of his father, Harvey Carper, in Fairfield-co common pleas court on Jan. 18, it was announced Wednesday. Renick will work with George W. Vorhys, Lancaster, in Carper's defense.

Young Carper is charged with shooting his father while the two were on a hunting trip in Clear-creek-twp, Fairfield-co, last August. The decomposed body was found two weeks after the shooting. The boy, allegedly, made a confession to Sheriff Gail Sesler of Lancaster, but when indicted pleaded not guilty to the charge.

HIS FAMILY AIDS

His family, including brothers and sisters, have rallied to his defense and have repeatedly stated the youth is not guilty of the charge.

A venire of 75 persons has been called for jury duty.

Whether or not Prosecuting Attorney Russell Cunningham of Fairfield-co will try the case is not known as Cunningham, himself, faces a charge filed in Fairfield-co courts to be heard this month before Judge Joseph W. Adkins. An effort is being made by Lancaster residents to oust him from office.

ORR RENAMED PRESIDENT BY OHIO CANNERS

Celina Man Elected Vice President, Replace Teagarden; Irons Named

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Ohio State Professor Sees Good Prospects

Howard A. Orr, of E. Union-st, was reelected today as president of the Ohio Canner's Association at the organization's annual meeting in Columbus.

H. F. Krimendahl, Celina canner, was chosen as vice president succeeding O. L. Teagarden of Oak Harbor, and Roy Irons of Clyde, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Walter Pressing of Norwalk, Theodore Vandervort, of Wilmington, W. B Swonger of Sidney, James Stoops of Vanwert, and C. Webb Campbell of Conneaut were chosen for the association's board of directors.

BROWN IS PLEASED

The reelection of Orr followed a business meeting in which Dr. H. D. Brown, Ohio State University agricultural specialist, predicted the farmers of Ohio would soon become the beneficiaries of a boom that would boost the state canning industry to an importance it has not reached since 1890.

The boom is being hastened, Dr. Brown said, by increased freight rates which are discouraging distant states from sending vegetables into Ohio to compete against lower priced local products.

Given this advantage Ohio farmers are certain to do everything possible to make the state self supporting in all lines of agriculture, the speaker asserted.

CITES POTATOES

Citing one example, Dr. Brown declared that the potato acreage in Ohio increased from eight to ten per cent during the past year because growers of Idaho potatoes were prohibited by freight rates from competing in this state.

Canners also will make big gains in Ohio because they are on the road to improving their products, Dr. Brown said, pointing out that a sum of $2,000 now is being raised by the association for research in hybrid corn investigation. The Ohio canned corn as a result will take its place on the market with the best in the land he said.

FRIDAY IS SEAL DAY IN SCHOOL

City, Villages, Townships To Conduct Health Seal Sales On December 11.

Friday, Dec. 11, has been set as Christmas public health seal day in the public schools of Pickaway-co with sales being handled by township chairman. In this city and in Ashville the seal committee will cooperate with school officials in conducting the sale. This is the only day of the year that school children are being asked to purchase seals.

In the various townships, chairmen will work with the various township superintendents and principals. At the completion of the sale in each school the superintendent is to make a report to his particular township representative of the health league.

It is expected the seal sale will meet with approval in the schools since B. O. Skinner, state education director, has decreed this day as that to conduct the sales.

Saloon League Attacks Baker

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—True to its promise, the Anti-Saloon League of Ohio was up to its neck in the presidential fight today with an attack on Newton D. Baker broadcast as a warning to candidates that a firm yes or no will be demanded on the liquor issue in 1932

Baker, former secretary of war and now being boomed for the presidency by former Congressman Martin L. Davey and other Ohioans, was assailed for a statement in which he said "bread and not beer" is the question before the people now

In a statement from S P McNaught, Ohio superintendent of the league, Baker was accused of advising the Democratic party to avoid the prohibition question in its forthcoming campaign

Mr. Baker should know the statement said, that neither the Democratic party nor the Republican party nor any candidate can escape making a positive declaration and taking positive stand on the liquor issue, for while bread will be an important issue in the campaign of 1932, beer also will be an important issue, brought on by the wets themselves."

BANDITS ROB CINCI. BANK

Men Armed With Revolvers Obtain Between $5,000 and $6,000 Today.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 9.--Armed with revolvers, four bandits held up eight employes of the Avondale branch of the Peoples Bank & Savings company of Cincinnati, rifled the cages and escaped with between $5,000 and $6,000 in currency today.

Entering the bank shortly after it opened, the leader confronted John Flanagan, manager, while two others took positions in front of the cages. One bandit remained outside at the wheel of the automobile with its engine running.

Drawing his gun, the leader informed Flanagan, "It's a stickup. We want the money." Simultaneously the seven other employes were forced to surrender under the guns and lined against the wall back of the cages. Here they remained under guard while the three cages were rifled of their cash.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE ADVANCES

The Christmas Seal sale in Pickaway-co started off in fine shape as indicated by the returns for the first week, which amounted to over $200.

Miss Helen Bartholomew, county health nurse, was the first person in the county to buy seals.

This sale continues through the holiday season, and what better Christmas gift can be given a child than a guarantee of good health? Eighty per cent of the proceeds will be used in our county for the prevention of tuberculosis and the promotion of health.

The returns from the sale of the little Santa Claus seal may prevent your child being a victim of dreaded tuberculosis.

PROFESSOR FACES TRIAL

MRS. JENNIE KANE — WHERE MRS. KANE DROWNED — PROF. ELISHA KANE

The sea took an important part in the murder trial of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, charged with the murder of his pretty wife. It is charged that Prof. Kane willfully drowned his wife, Jennie Graham Kane, while bathing at Grandview Beach, in the Chesapeake Bay. Both are shown above.

The professor claims Mrs. Kane slipped off a rock and was drowned.

Ocean Is Silent Witness Against Professor Kane

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 9.—A silent witness has appeared in the court room here where Professor Elisha Kent Kane, 3rd, is being tried for the murder of his wife, Jenny Graham Kane.

It is a witness summoned by neither prosecution nor defense, answering to no roll call, bearing no name. Yet the testimony of this witness thus far has been the most damaging to which the inscrutable University of Tennessee professor has had to listen.

That witness is—the sea.

Through the lips of human givers of testimony, the sea has spoken, furnishing graphic details of the death of the pretty young brunette who was forcibly held beneath the water at Grandview beach by her powerful husband, according to the state.

Professor Kane has blamed his wife's drowning on the treachery of the sea, saying the current carried Mrs. Kane beyond her depth before he could reach her.

"A floating object would move up the beach toward Old Point Comfort, not out to sea," declared Chambers.

At the time of Mrs. Kane's drowning there was an offshore breeze, but it was so mild that Captain T. C. Rollins, clam tonger who heard the woman's scream and saw her sink beneath the waves, hesitated to dignify it by recognition as a breeze, at all.

He said also the two figures he saw on September 11, were standing but waist deep in water at the time the woman shrieked. Her voice sounded like "some one who was hurt."

POWERS TAKES STAND TODAY

Bluebeard Slayer To Attempt To Talk Himself From Hangman's Noose.

OPERA HOUSE COURT ROOM, CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 9.—Harry Powers, supposed Bluebeard slayer of two women and three children, today slumped in the witness stand and tried to talk himself out of the hangman's noose.

"It wasn't me, it was a couple of other fellows," was the upshot of his testimony.

The last he saw of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, one of his victims, was with a fellow named Cecil Johnson.

Powers had previously stated the last he saw of Mrs. Asta Eicher, another victim, was with a chap named Charles Rogers.

It was Charlie Rogers, one of his pals in Clarksburg, who introduced him to the matrimonial bureau racket and to Mrs. Lemke, Powers testified.

TAX INCREASE WOULD TOUCH EVERY POCKET

Hoover's Plan for More Revenue Explained in Budget Report

DEBT 3½ BILLIONS

'Nuisance' Tax Would be Resumed in Plan

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—A two-year tax increase that will dig deeply into every American pocket was proposed to Congress by President Hoover today when he submitted the new budget disclosing estimated treasury deficits of $3,630,000,000 for the current and next fiscal years.

The president recommended putting federal taxes back on the 1924 basis. The increases would be applicable to this year's incomes.

Simultaneously, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon supplied the details of the administration's plan. It really goes far beyond the 1924 tax law by proposing the revival of some old, and the addition of some new "nuisance" taxes, applicable to telephone and telegraph messages, bank checks, etc.

REVIVE "NUISANCE"

Income and corporation taxes would go sharply upward, while for those who escape these would be the "nuisance" taxes affecting the daily business and diversions of almost every citizen. An increase in the cigarette tax and the tax on small-priced admission tickets probably would assure that no one could totally escape contributing to the federal government.

Normal income tax rates would be 2, 4 and 6 per cent, instead of 1 1-2, 3 and 5 per cent as at present, and surtaxes would begin with 1 per cent at $10,000, graduating upward to 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000. The present maximum surtax is 20 per cent.

LOWER EXEMPTIONS

Exemptions would be lowered, too, in order to bring some 1,700,000 citizens back into the income tax paying class.

The corporation tax would be increased from 12 to 12 1-2 per cent, while the estate tax would go back to the 1921 level of 1 per cent on $50,000 graduating upward to 25 per cent on amounts in excess of $10,000,000.

The miscellaneous taxes would include manufacturers' tax on automobiles, radios, phonographs, auto trucks, and accessories.

"We cannot maintain public confidence nor stability of the federal government," the president said in his budget message, "without undertaking some temporary tax increases.

"I recommend that Congress provide for an increase in taxation for a definite limited period and upon the general plan . . . of the revenue act of 1924, with such changes as may be appropriate in the light of altered conditions.

"It is proposed that this increase shall be definitely terminated two years from next July.

"This plan, it is estimated, will

Firemen Call For Additional Toys

Members of the fire department have been kept plenty busy the past few days repairing and painting toys for distribution at the Community Christmas tree. Many toys have been taken to the engine house and it is requested that anyone who has toys of any kind take them to the fire department for repairs.

Many persons have unused toys if they would just take a few minutes to hunt for them.

Contributors Monday evening and Tuesday were, Mrs. Bruce Stevenson, Wallace Crist, Junior Geib, Jimmy Dalgarn, Dudley Iles, F. E. Barnhill, Robert and Norman Anderson, Mary Alice Strawser, Ed. Sensenbrenner and Bob Brehmer. Several children whose names were not learned also gave toys to help the unfortunate children of the community enjoy their Christmas.

MODERN WOODMEN ELECT OFFICERS

Charles H. Radcliff, sheriff, was elected Past Consul of Circleville Camp 3648, Modern Woodmen of America, and Walker Baughman was named Consul at the annual election held Tuesday in the lodge rooms here.

Other officers named were Clyde R. Leist, Adviser; J. W. Neuding, Banker; A. C. Cook, Clerk; Asa Robinson, Escort; Reynold Greene, Watchman; Abe May, Sentry; Dr. A. W. Holman, Camp Physician, and O. J. Towers, James Brown and T. F. Jeffries, trustees.

Officers will be installed at the next meeting, Dec. 22.

The camp was organized Dec. 6, 1899, and the only surviving charter member is Dr. A. W. Holman. Death benefits paid through this camp have totalled $70,000.

GILES IS FACING BAD CHECK CHARGE

A man giving his name as Mack Giles, 37, of Circleville and at the same time telling that his home is in Texas, will be given a hearing before Mayor Bob Gunning of Chillicothe this afternoon on a charge of passing several bad checks on Chillicothe landladies from whom he pretended to be renting.

One check on a Circleville bank was for $27.50, another was for $15.

Giles was arrested Monday on a charge of intoxication and using indecent language.

RENICK TO AID CARPER YOUTH, FACES MURDER

Local Attorney on Defense Staff in Fairfield-co Murder Case

IS SET FOR JAN. 18

Cunningham May Not Try Case; Faces Charge

Tom A. Renick, local attorney, will assist in the defense of Sesco Carper, Saltcreek-twp youth, when he goes on trial for the first degree murder of his father, Harvey Carper, in Fairfield-co common pleas court on Jan. 18, it was announced Wednesday. Renick will work with George W. Vorhys, Lancaster, in Carper's defense.

Young Carper is charged with shooting his father while the two were on a hunting trip in Clearcreek-twp, Fairfield-co, last August. The decomposed body was found two weeks after the shooting. The boy, allegedly, made a confession to Sheriff Gail Sesler of Lancaster, but when indicted pleaded not guilty to the charge.

HIS FAMILY AIDS

His family, including brothers and sisters, have rallied to his defense and have repeatedly stated the youth is not guilty of the charge.

A venire of 75 persons has been called for jury duty.

Whether or not Prosecuting Attorney Russell Cunningham of Fairfield-co will try the case is not known as Cunningham, himself, faces a charge filed in Fairfield-co courts to be heard this month before Judge Joseph W. Adkins. An effort is being made by Lancaster residents to oust him from office.

FOURTH SCOUT TROOP FORMED

Boys of Children's Home Comprise Organization at Two Churches Here.

Another Boy Scout troop has been organized in this city sponsered by the Presbyterian and Methodist churches. It holds its regular meeting each Monday evening in the basement of the former church.

Herbert Hammel, 318 Watt-st, is scoutmaster of the troop and is assisted by Clayton L. Young, 485 N. Pickaway-st. George E. Roth is chairman of the troop committee consisting of William M. Reid, George Hammel and Homer C. Swartz.

Scouts who have enrolled are Jessie Chandler, Elvin Keaton, Homer Lagore, Charles McWhorten, Earl Short, Howard Smith, Frances Temple, William Woodring, Charles Whitten and Charles Young. All the boys are inmates of the childrens' home.

The troop is known as No. 168 in the Central Ohio Area Council and is the fourth scout troop in this city.

Announcement has been made that Ashville troop 84 has been reregistered for 1932 with Daniel Boone as scoutmaster and E. F. Schlegel as assistant scoutmaster. Eighteen scouts are listed in the organization.

Dr. Holman Talks Of Europe Tours

Dr. A. W. Holman gave an interesting address before the Men's Club of the Presbyterian church Tuesday at its regular meeting. Dr. Holman discussed his trip through Europe.

He told of crossing the ocean, the journey through Scotland and England, the visit on the mainland and the trip through the Alps and into Italy.

The meeting was in charge of C. E. Groce, the club's president. The entertainment and lunch committee was headed by Wilson F. Cellar. The next meeting, in charge of H. G. Stevenson and his committee, will be on Jan. 22.

ORR RENAMED PRESIDENT BY OHIO CANNERS

Celina Man Elected Vice President, Replace Teagarden; Irons Named

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Ohio State Professor Sees Good Prospects

Howard A. Orr, of E. Union-st, was reelected today as president of the Ohio Canner's Association at the organization's annual meeting in Columbus.

H. F. Krimendahl, Celina canner, was chosen as vice president succeeding O. L. Teagarden of Oak Harbor, and Roy Irons of Clyde, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Walter Pressing of Norwalk, Theodore Vandervort, of Wilmington, W. B. Swonger of Sidney, James Stoops of Vanwert, and C. Webb Campbell of Conneaut were chosen for the association's board of directors.

BROWN IS PLEASED

The reelection of Orr followed a business meeting in which Dr. H. D. Brown, Ohio State University agricultural specialist, predicted the farmers of Ohio would soon become the beneficiaries of a boom that would boost the state canning industry to an importance it has not reached since 1890.

The boom is being hastened, Dr. Brown said, by increased freight rates which are discouraging distant states from sending vegetables into Ohio to compete against lower priced local products.

Given this advantage Ohio farmers are certain to do everything possible to make the state self supporting in all lines of agriculture, the speaker asserted.

CITES POTATOES

Citing one example, Dr. Brown declared that the potato acreage in Ohio increased from eight to ten per cent during the past year because growers of Idaho potatoes were prohibited by freight rates from competing in this state.

Canners also will make big gains in Ohio because they are on the road to improving their products, Dr. Brown said, pointing out that a sum of $2,000 now is being raised by the association for research in hybrid corn investigation. The Ohio canned corn as a result will take its place on the market with the best in the land he said.

FRIDAY IS SEAL DAY IN SCHOOL

City, Villages, Townships To Conduct Health Seal Sales On December 11.

Friday, Dec. 11, has been set as Christmas public health seal day in the public schools of Pickaway-co with sales being handled by township chairman. In this city and in Ashville the seal committee will cooperate with school officials in conducting the sale. This is the only day of the year that school children are being asked to purchase seals.

In the various townships, chairmen will work with the various township superintendents and principals. At the completion of the sale in each school the superintendent is to make a report to his particular township representative of the health league.

It is expected the seal sale will meet with approval in the schools since B. O. Skinner, state education director, has decreed this day as that to conduct the sales.

Saloon League Attacks Baker

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—True to its promise, the Anti-Saloon League of Ohio was up to its neck in the presidential fight today with an attack on Newton D. Baker broadcast as a warning to candidates that a firm yes or no will be demanded on the liquor issue in 1932.

Baker, former secretary of war and now being boomed for the presidency by former Congressman Martin L. Davey and other Ohioans, was assailed for a statement in which he said "bread and not beer" is the question before the people now.

In a statement from S. P. McNaught, Ohio superintendent of the league, Baker was accused of advising the Democratic party to avoid the prohibition question in its forthcoming campaign.

"Mr. Baker should know," the statement said, "that neither the Democratic party nor the Republican party, nor any candidate can escape making a positive declaration and taking positive stand on the liquor issue, for while bread will be an important issue in the campaign of 1932, beer also will be an important issue, brought on by the wets themselves."

The Shops have a fast, clean team and one that will give the Athletic Club aggregation a fast hustle to come near or gain a victory.

Bob Tittel, former Ohio State University forward, and Paul Price, pair at the offensive posts, with Harris at center. Mike Mileusnich, erstwhile South Hi and Bliss college star, is at one guard position while several other athletes complete the squad.

The Shops are a clean bunch of courtsters and their style of play has been praised by Columbus hardwood fans.

The C. A. C. squad will consist of Steele, Parks, Pickens, Merriman, Gordon, Robinson and Barnes.

A preliminary which will see the Flying Clouds tangle with Darbyville's tough Independents, has been arranged. The Clouds will have Davis, Glitt, McGlone Wofler, Maloney, Clark, Zeimer, and others while Darbyville's team is built around the two Beattys, Walker, Hosler, Buckum Wagner and a couple other athletes

Ted Sawyer, former local high school football star later of Ohio University, will referee the big game.

The preliminary which promises to be plenty interesting begins at 7:15 p. m.

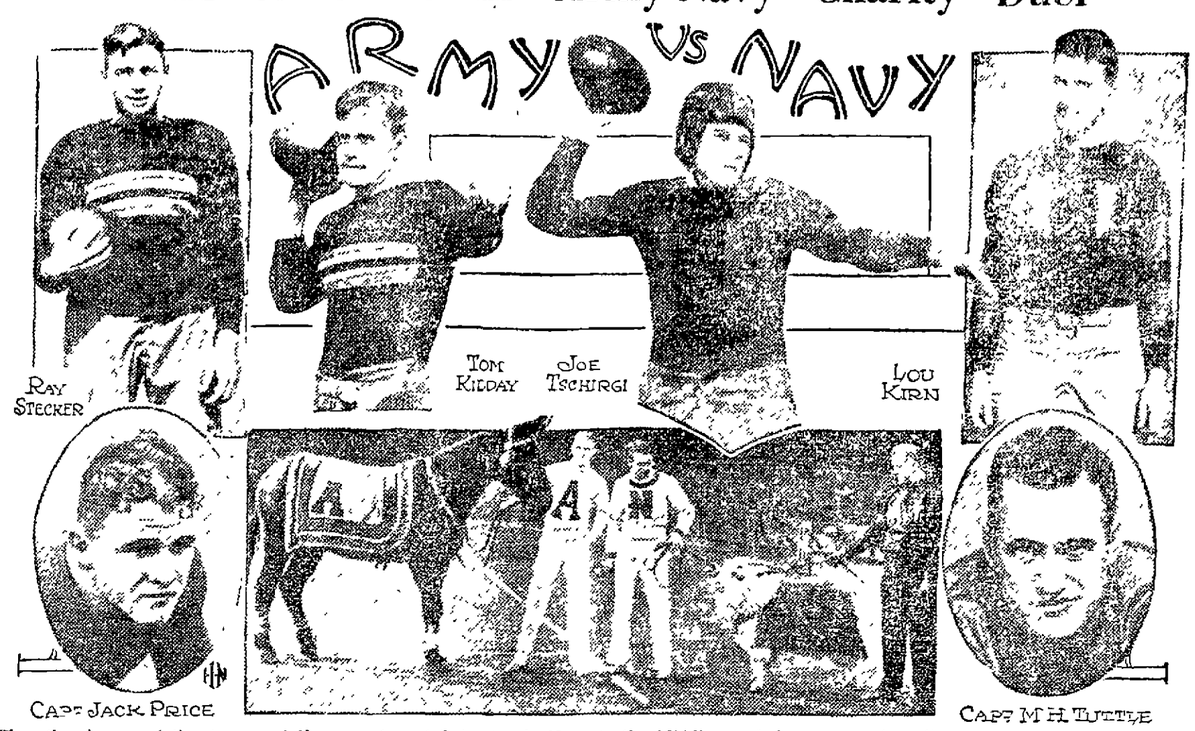
Stars to Shine in Army-Navy Charity Duel



When the elevens of the Army and Navy meet next Saturday in New York to enact another scene in the traditional rivalry that exists between the service teams, the Cadets and the Middies will trot out on the gridiron, each supremely confident of success. Army has had a good season with only two defeats chalked up against it, and a brilliant 12-0 victory over Notre Dame as the shining jewel in the season's play. On the other hand Navy dropped four games, one 20-0 to Notre Dame. but their defeat of Pennsylvania has acted like a tonic to the Middies, and they are out to collect an Army scalp. Last year Army gained a 6-0 triumph, but past performances are nothing to judge by, as it is impossible to predict what will happen when the service rivals get together. Army's big three in the battle will be Capt. Jack Price, Ray Stecker and Tom Kilday, all having drawn considerable attention by their consistent brilliance during the season. The Navy's big guns are Capt. Tuttle, Lou Kirn and Joe Tschirgi Last year's game raised half a million dollars for the needy, and whatever the result of Saturday's game. the poor will again be victors herds of the state. His sire, Green Meadow Constant, 89,353, was third prize bull at the Ohio State Fair, in 1926. He has ten A R daughters. The dam, Mixter May Heiress, 124,210, sold for $1 650 00

The third calf, went to Stanley Glick, Circleville-twp. This calf was bred by Walter Hach, of Medina, Ohio He was seven months old December 9th A good growthy calf from high producing May Rose breeding

These three bulls, with the two bulls formerly imported, Caumsett Native, owned by the Pickaway Guernsey Breeders Association and Corum Ultimus Kitchner, owned by Minnick and Vincent, gives Pickaway-co dairy folks five outstanding Guernsey bulls The importation of these bulls is just another step in laying the foundation for a permanent dairy program throughout the county. In the very near future there will be little excuse for dairy farmers who wish to improve their herds through sires of out-standing blood lines and production, failing to attain this end. In the pedigrees of these five bulls, is represented some of the best Guernsey breeding and the highest milk and butterfat production to be found in the state of Ohio.

High Court "5" To Play Friday

Circleville's two high school court teams will pry off the season's lid Friday evening against the teams representing Rockbridge

The girls are expected to have the toughest time registering a victory as all reports available disclose that Rockbridge's team is a fast one. Not much is known of the boys' team although Rockbridge always has a fair aggregation

The contests, from Circleville's angle, are merely to obtain a line on prospective varsity material While Coach Pete Herberholz has several veterans to build his team around, Miss Rains of the girls' team must find athletes to replace several good tossers.

While the Red and Black mentor has not announced his starting lineup and is not expected to do so until game time, it is presumed that Carl Purcell, Bill Hegele, Dean White, Merle Davis and Pete Stout will be the starting five What positions they will be in is not certain Several other tossers have been showing progress in the past few days and they will get a chance to show their wares.

Miss Rains lost three good basketball players in Doris Peters and Elois Eldridge by graduation and Agnes Heskett by removing to Groveport. Others have been developed to take their places although a guard that can cover and play as dependable a game as Doris Peters is not to be found in high school circles every day.

It is expected Johnny Heiskell will referee the games. His work as an official has been drawing much favorable comment

BOBCATS LOSE TO OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—A scrappy, never-say-die quintet from Ohio University had given Ohio State University's crew of giant basketeers its first baptism of basketball this season today and went home dragging the small end of a 25 to 18 score.

But is was nothing to be ashamed of The Buckeyes won, but they did so by the skin of their teeth. The Bobcats lost, but the way they "went down" served as notice that they'll be heard from later on in the season.

One thing was plainly evident last night to the 3,000 some fans who turned out to the state fair coliseum for the season's "opener." And that was that both teams could use plenty of practice—particularly Ohio State. The Bobcats for the most part handled the ball more effectively than the Buckeyes, but their "batting eye" was a bit off and they had trouble connecting with the basket

Although always threatening, the Ohio U. quintet trailed the Buckeye "skyscraper outfit" the entire game. Ohio State led at the half, 13 to 7

Trace and Mills the two midget forwards for the visitors, performed in mid-season style. Each scored five points and led the bulky Buckeyes a merry chase as they ran, ducked, zig-zagged and faked all over the floor.

KILL TROUBLESOME LAWN WEEDS, PLEA

With winter approaching, there is still an opportunity to kill many troublesome weeds common in lawns. In fact, spraying with a diluted solution of Sodium Chlorate throughout the winter months will assist materially in controlling a number of these common lawn weeds. The weak solution will not kill, but will discolor the lawn grass since the discoloration is less noticeable and objectionable throughout the winter than in the summer, this method has gained favor among lawn owners

The Agronomy Department Ohio Experiment Station recommend the use of 2-3 ounce of Sodium Chlorate per one gallon of water for each 100 square feet of grass With this solution, repeated applications will not kill the grass However, one spraying is usually sufficient to kill such weeds as ground ivy, Heal-all or Speedwell Three applications made three or four weeks apart are recommended to kill such weeds as Mouse ear, Chick weed, Money Wort and others of that sort. If the growth of weeds is dense, bare spots will be left but these can be fertilized and reseeded early in March. The sprays are as effective in winter as in warm weather in fact less chemical can be used in winter spraying than in summer spraying. Care should be taken in using Sodium Chlorate on account of its combustible nature

GUERNSEY HERD SHOW PROGRESS

The Pickaway-co Guernsey cattle club through the cooperation of County Agent, H. S. Lewis, has imported three outstanding May Rose bulls during November.

The first calf to arrive went to Edward Snyder of near Five Points. This Guernsey bull was bred by Forrest G Mason of Lisbon, Ohio The three nearest dams of the sire of this calf, Highland Ringmaster, 100,113 have records that average 12,397 pounds of milk and 622 pounds of butterfat per year

The second calf went to George Eitel, Circleville. This bull calf was produced by the Firestone Farms, Akron Ohio He came from the outstanding Guernsey

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931, C. M. Co.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

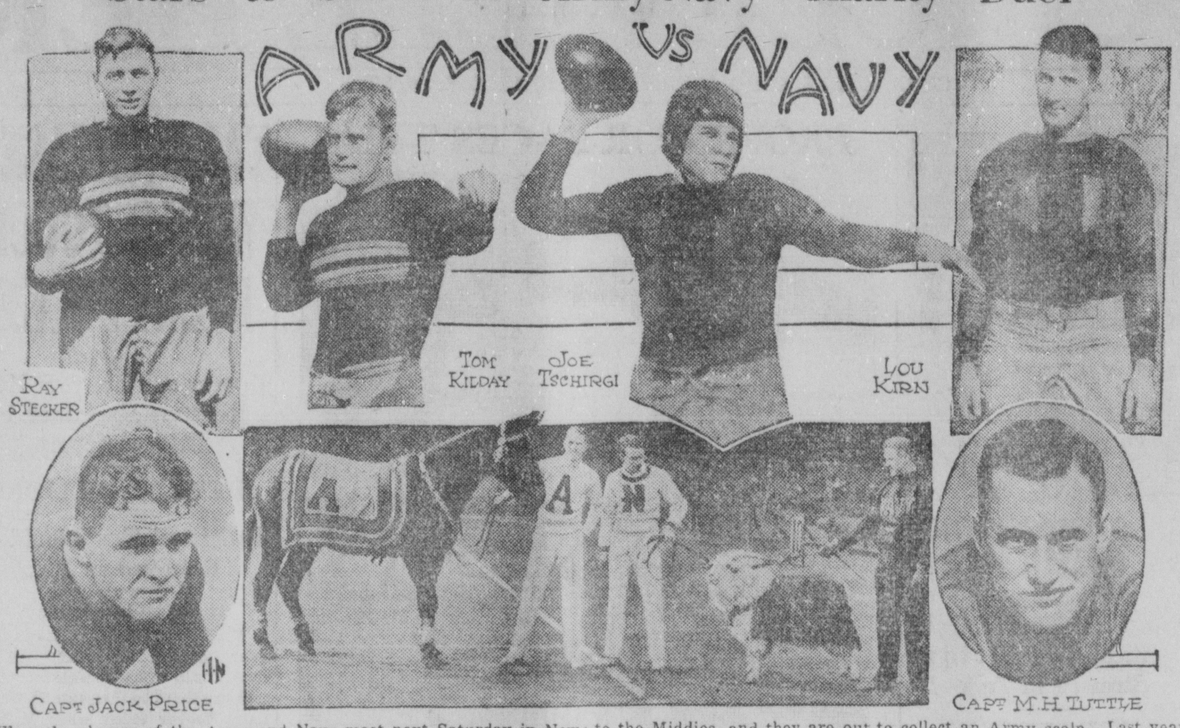
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

Stars to Shine in Army-Navy Charity Duel



When the elevens of the Army and Navy meet next Saturday in New York to enact another scene in the traditional rivalry that exists between the service teams, the Cadets and the Middies will trot out on the gridiron, each supremely confident of success. Army has had a good season with only two defeats chalked up against it, and a brilliant 12-0 victory over Notre Dame as the shining jewel in the season's play. On the other hand Navy dropped four games, one 20-0 to Notre Dame, but their defeat of Pennsylvania has acted like a tonic to the Middies, and they are out to collect an Army scalp. Last year Army gained a 6-0 triumph, but past performances are nothing to judge by, as it is impossible to predict what will happen when the service rivals get together. Army's big three in the battle will be Capt. Jack Price, Ray Stecker and Tom Kilday, all having drawn considerable attention by their consistent brilliance during the season. The Navy's big guns are Capt. Tuttle, Lou Kirn and Joe Tschirgi. Last year's game raised half a million dollars for the needy, and whatever the result of Saturday's game, the poor will again be victors.

High Court "5" To Play Friday

Circleville's two high school court teams will pry off the season's lid Friday evening against the teams representing Rockbridge.

The girls are expected to have the toughest time registering a victory as all reports available disclose that Rockbridge's team is a fast one. Not much is known of the boys' team although Rockbridge always has a fair aggregation.

The contests, from Circleville's angle, are merely to obtain a line on prospective varsity material. While Coach Pete Herberholz has several veterans to build his team around, Miss Rains of the girls' team must find athletes to replace several good tossers.

While the Red and Black mentor has not announced his starting lineup and is not expected to do so until game time, it is presumed that Carl Purcell, Bill Hegele, Dean White, Merle Davis and Pete Stout will be the starting five. What positions they will be in is not certain. Several other tossers have been showing progress in the past few days and they will get a chance to show their wares.

Miss Rains lost three good basketball players in Doris Peters and Elois Eldridge by graduation and Agnes Heskett by removing to Groveport. Others have been developed to take their places although a guard that can cover and play as dependable a game as Doris Peters is not to be found in high school circles every day.

It is expected Johnny Heiskell will referee the games. His work as an official has been drawing much favorable comment.

BOBCATS LOSE TO OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—A scrappy, never-say-die quintet from Ohio University had given Ohio State University's crew of giant basketeers its first baptism of basketball this season today and went home dragging the small end of a 25 to 18 score.

But is was nothing to be ashamed of. The Buckeyes won, but they did so by the skin of their teeth. The Bobcats lost, but the way they "went down" served as notice that they'll be heard from later on in the season.

One thing was plainly evident last night to the 3,000 some fans who turned out to the state fair coliseum for the season's "opener." And that was that both teams could use plenty of practice—particularly Ohio State. The Bobcats for the most part handled the ball more effectively than the Buckeyes, but their "batting eye" was a bit off and they had trouble connecting with the basket.

Although always threatening, the Ohio U. quintet trailed the Buckeye "skyscraper outfit" the entire game. Ohio State led at the half, 13 to 7.

Trace and Mills, the two midget forwards for the visitors, performed in mid-season style. Each scored five points and led the bulky Buckeyes a merry chase as they ran, ducked, zig-zagged and faked all over the floor.

KILL TROUBLESOME LAWN WEEDS, PLEA

With winter approaching, there is still an opportunity to kill many troublesome weeds common in lawns. In fact, spraying with a diluted solution of Sodium Chlorate throughout the winter months will assist materially in controlling a number of these common lawn weeds. The weak solution will not kill, but will discolor the lawn grass since the discoloration is less noticeable and objectionable throughout the winter than in the summer, this method has gained favor among lawn owners.

The Agronomy Department Ohio Experiment Station recommends the use of 2-3 ounce of Sodium Chlorate per one gallon of water for each 100 square feet of grass. With this solution, repeated applications will not kill the grass. However, one spraying is usually sufficient to kill such weeds as ground ivy, Heal-all or Speedwell. Three applications made three or four weeks apart are recommended to kill such weeds as Mouse ear, Chick weed, Money Wort and others of that sort. If the growth of weeds is dense, bare spots will be left, but these can be fertilized and reseeded early in March. The sprays are as effective in winter as in warm weather, in fact less chemical can be used in winter spraying than in summer spraying. Care should be taken in using Sodium Chlorate on account of its combustionable nature.

GUERNSEY HERD SHOW PROGRESS

The Pickaway-co Guernsey cattle club through the cooperation of County Agent, H. S. Lewis, has imported three outstanding May Rose bulls during November.

The first calf to arrive went to Edward Snyder of near Five Points. This Guernsey bull was bred by Forrest G. Mason of Lisbon, Ohio. The three nearest dams of the sire of this calf, Highland Ringmaster, 100,113 have records that average 12,397 pounds of milk and 622 pounds of butterfat per year.

The second calf went to George Eitel, Circleville. This bull calf was produced by the Firestone Farms, Akron Ohio. He came from the outstanding Guernsey herds of the state. His sire, Green Meadow Constant, 89,353, was third prize bull at the Ohio State Fair, in 1926. He has ten A. R. daughters. The dam, Mixter May Heiress, 124,210, sold for $1,650.00.

The third calf, went to Stanley Glick, Circleville-twp. This calf was bred by Walter Hach, of Medina, Ohio. He was seven months old December 9th. A good growtny calf from high producing May Rose breeding.

These three bulls, with the two bulls formerly imported, Caumsett Native, owned by the Pickaway Guernsey Breeders Association and Corium Ultimus Kitchner, owned by Minnick and Vincent, gives Pickaway-co dairy folks five outstanding Guernsey bulls. The importation of these bulls is just another step in laying the foundation for a permanent dairy program throughout the county. In the very near future there will be little excuse for dairy farmers who wish to improve their herds through sires of out-standing blood lines and production, failing to attain this end. In the pedigrees of these five bulls, is represented some of the best Guernsey breeding and the highest milk and butterfat production to be found in the state of Ohio.

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?"—THAT'S WHAT SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around . . . asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded . . . forgotten. "How good is it?" . . . that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"HOW good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country . . . and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care . . . the same skillful handling . . . in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended . . . that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

FROM field to package, Chesterfields are protected by the strictest purity standards; the most modern sanitary manufacturing methods.

They're rolled in the finest, whitest paper . . . that burns without taste or odor. Wrapped in a clean, attractive package . . . neat, fresh-looking; moisture-tight . . . but easy to open.

And delivered as fast as they're made . . . from 3 big factories . . . to every cigarette counter in the land.

THAT'S the story of why Chesterfields satisfy. That's the reason they're milder . . . that's why they taste better. Light up . . . and answer your own question!

"No question about it—They really Satisfy"

The following students have a perfect record in attendance during the past three months: Leland Amann, Walter Crawford, Edwin Settles, Hazel Ankrom, Avanelle Bosworth, Juanita Strawser, and Florence Welch.

This room is also decorated with Christmas decorations. There are candles, Santa Claus, and sleighs on the black board. There is a Christmas tree in the front of the room which is decorated with various Christmas decorations.

Marguerite Hilpen has withdrawn and moved to Ross-co.

This grade is starting on their Christmas songs, which will be a part of their Christmas program.

Sue Robinson is out of school with scarlet fever.

Mary Schreckengaust is absent with the chicken pox.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

By Charlotte Moore '34

Miss Marie Hamilton

Buckeye and maple leaves have been mounted and colored on a white background making an attractive room decoration.

Louise Stonerock, who has been out with an infection, is back in school.

Almost 490 buckeyes, which the class gathered, have been packed in sawdust and watered daily. The State Department of Education has requested that these buckeyes be sent in February to them, and they will be distributed as far west as California for planting purposes.

Mary Robinson is still under quarantine for scarlet fever.

Mrs. Edith Vlerebome Lester Quincel, who has been under quarantine, is back in school.

HIGH-ST HISTORY

By Bill Copeland '34

Miss Sophia Parks, Prin.

Mr. E. L. Dailey presented each room of High-st school with a beautifully colored painting of George Washington.

A game called 'mibs' has been introduced and demonstrated in each room of High-st. The pupil who writes the best essay on the game in his room receives a game free. One set is given to each room.

SIXTH GRADE

Miss Sophia Parks

The girls of the sixth grade held a meeting of their sewing club, Tuesday night. Mary Jane Schiear and Jean Theobald were in charge of the refreshments. The sewing club plans to entertain the boys in their class.

New set of science books, 'The World We Live In,' has been purchased for use in the class.

Weekly library hour in which pupils take out and return books was held Friday afternoon.

Sixth grade pupils sold $25.75 worth of operetta tickets.

Boys and girls in this room have planted several bulbs, which are expected to bloom soon to beautify the room.

FIFTH GRADE

Mrs. Gladys Peters

Ruth Hill of this class has been sent to Mt. Carmel hospital because of a defect in one eye. It is feared that Ruth may lose the eye.

FOURTH GRADE

Miss Kathryn L. Reid

The following pupils of this class have not been absent or tardy since the beginning of school in September: Marvene Armstrong, Bobby Bowsher, Jack Clifton, Martha E. Dresbach, Mary Alice Lemparter, and Charles Zaenglein.

THIRD GRADE

Miss Adah Burgett

All day Friday the third grade took state tests.

Jack Dooley is absent because of illness.

Third grade has entered the 'mibs' contest.

SECOND GRADE

Miss Virginia Marion

Following pupils have not been absent or tardy this year: Glen Barnhart, Harry Clifton Jr., Dorothy Ann Dresbach, Margaret Ann Groce, Norphus Lemaster, Joe McMahon, Jefferson Mahorney, Oscar Morgan, Paul Siegwalt, Earl Smith, Marjorie Trimmer, and Eleanor Weaver.

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?" SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW —THAT'S WHAT ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around . . . asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded . . . forgotten. "How good is it?" . . . that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"HOW good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country . . . and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care . . . the same skillful handling . . . in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended . . . that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

FROM field to package, Chesterfields are protected by the strictest purity standards; the most modern sanitary manufacturing methods.

They're rolled in the finest, whitest paper . . . that burns without taste or odor. Wrapped in a clean, attractive package . . . neat, fresh-looking; moisture-tight . . . but easy to open.

And delivered as fast as they're made . . . from 3 big factories . . . to every cigarette counter in the land. . . .

THAT'S the story of why Chesterfields satisfy. That's the reason they're milder . . . that's why they taste better. Light up . . . and answer your own question!

Personnal Experience

A young man from Lowell, Mass., has sailed his 32-foot sailboat into New York harbor after voyaging all the way around the world in it; and the New York newspapers, quite naturally, sent reporters to meet him, and give him plenty of space in which to describe his adventures.

A three-year voyage around the globe in a tiny ketch certainly ought to provide a lot of conversational material. But the most interesting thing about the published interviews with the young man is that he seems to have had a very hard time giving an intimate, realistic account of his adventures.

To be sure, he told in detail just where he went and what he did. He mentioned an attack by pirates in the Red Sea, a sojourn in the South Sea islands, an incident in which a steamer nearly ran him down, a first-hand glimpse at such things as whales and frigate birds and volcanos and waterspouts, and the like; but somehow the things we would really like to know—how it feels to be alone in mid-Pacific, what a tropic dawn looks like in Samoa, what a man thinks about on a trip of that kind—they were left out.

If you are at all familiar with travelogues of this kind, you will realize at once that that is the way it usually it. These chaps who make unspeakably romonce trips to far places never, or a almost never, seem able to get the essence of their voyaging into their narratives.

They give, instead, catalogs of things seen and itineraries of places visited and all the while they know that they are not really getting over the true significance of their experiences at all.

For the real inwardness of any bit of romantic adventure is a secret that is almost impossible to communicate. It has to do with something that happens within.

Many persons would like to know what Drake saw in the Pacific, and what dream dazzled Raleigh in the South American jungle, and how Marco Polo felt when he entered the Asian interior, but they never shall. Those who are lucky enough to get in on such things are seldom able to tell about them afterward.

Maps Too Complete

IT is interesting to learn that the map which Christopher Columbus used on his third voyage to America has come to light in a Turkish museum, and will shortly be given to the world.

There is a world of romance in maps, especially in very old ones; and the map which carries great blank spaces along its borders, indicating that the cartographer did not know what lay behind the horizon, can call forth endless dreams.

That, of course, was the kind of map Columbus used. On his first voyage maps were of little use to him. He expected to fetch up against the Asiatic coastline somewhere, and he probably had such charts of China, Malaya and India as fifteenth century Spain could provide. But all the way thither was a mysterious and unknown as the other side of the moon. What good is a map to a man who charts a course due west into a shoreless sea?

By the time he made his third trip, of course, he probably had a more or less makeshift set of charts. He knew, at least, that sooner or later he would make a more or less familiar landfall. Somewhere ahead there were islands and channels he had seen before.

But all the rest was darkness. To the north and south stretched almost infinite reaches of empty ocean, which might conceal anything from the lost Atlantis to the Happy Isles that Ulysses sailed for. What, one wonders, did the old navigator think, what sort of speculation took hold of him, as [illegible]

The world shall never know, of course. Sea-faring men are seldom communicative, and Columbus was no exception. But since that is a closed book, the next best thing is a glimpse at the map he used; and the man who could not pore over it by the hour, lost in dreams, has no appreciation of romance.

One trouble with the world today, you see, is that maps are too complete. Around the poles there are dwindling white spaces, and Asia and South America still have small areas that are unknown. But for the most part every headland has been charted, every mountain range has been filed in, every river bed has been traced. What wouldn't man give for a map that was half empty!

May Explain Jap Actions

ONE important point to remember in studying the movements of the Japanese army in and about Manchuria, is that the Japanese war department operates under a setup totally unlike that of any other modern nation.

In every other great power, the premier and parliament have complete, continuous control over the actions of their fighting men. Through hysteria or incompetence they may occasionally lose control, of course—as actually happened in at least two European countries when the World war was about to begin; but legally they are in complete charge.

In Japan it is different. The army is answerable only to the emperor. It is a separate department of government. In an emergency like this the cabinet has very little real control. This may help to explain why its actions occasionally fail to jibe with the promises issued at Tokio.

"The CZARINA'S RUBIES"

by Sidney Warwick

© 1931 Kent Features Syndicate, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST

Katharine Faring, granddaughter of a Russian prince, is the rightful owner of the missing Czarina rubies of sinister fame and fabulous value. Trying to recover them for her, Paul Federoff is murdered at Monksilver, a vacant country house, and Frank Severn is kidnaped and carried there unconscious. His servant, Creyke, is murdered.

Jim Wynter, friend of Severn and of Katharine, tries to rescue Severn, is injured and drugged and awakens in the home of mysterious Dr. Martell. Recovering, he takes Katharine and his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grayson, to Severn's country home, Beggar's Court. There a search reveals a concealed stairway and a locked door in the ruins of an ancient chapel. The stub of one of Dr. Martell's cigarets lies on the stairs.

Sant, Severn's lawyer, reluctantly agrees that the door be forced and goes to engage a blacksmith. Wynter and Grayson encounter in a nearby village a man Grayson recognizes as a former Sing Sing convict. Returning to Beggar's Court they find a wall of the ruin collapsed and the secret stairway buried.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XXXIII

Bill Grayson glanced round from the seat in front as the country road merged into the straggling village street.

"We shall want a spot of petrol before we go much further. Know of any filling station hereabouts, Jim?"

"Yes; just around the corner beyond the Cross Keys."

The Cross Keys was the village inn, its lighted windows now gleaming ahead of them through the deepening dusk—a big old-fashioned place with great stone cellars that a century back when smuggling had been a popular illicit trade in this corner of Essex, had harbored the fruits of many a successful "run" at the estuary to Mead's End.

REMINDER

The night was very still and as Milly drove by, from an upper window of the inn a sound floated down to them in passing—a sound that in a flash carried Jim Wynter's mind startlingly back to Monksilver, where in the blind night of that empty house he had come upon mystery, terror and death.

Just some one, invisible behind the curtains of that half-open window, whistling the air of a song from a revue running at one of the theaters—but enough to bring a startled gleam of remembrance to Jim's eyes.

The same air that he had heard an unseen man whistle that night at Monksilver—that man whose face would still be that of the veriest stranger, though he had heard and would know the voice again, with whom he had fought in the darkness of that perilous house.

The car shot past and round the corner, to draw up for petrol outside the lighted row of pumps of the garage there. On a sudden impulse Jim got out whilst the car's tank was being replenished, and with a word to the others strode back to where the lights of the Cross Keys gleamed out into the dark.

He wanted to see the face of the man who had whistled that air.

Not that Jim Wynter had really any expectation that that man behind the upper window could be that unknown antagonist of Monksilver . . . no doubt so popular an air was being whistled all over England. And yet—

And yet those events at Monksilver, Severn's capture and Creyke's death, were so closely associated with a house less than a mile from the Cross Keys . . .

As he stood looking up at that window, the whistling broke off abruptly. Faintly he heard the hum of voices in the room. In the deserted village street Jim picked up a pebble and threw it up at the window. It struck the glass with a sharp tinkle.

The man himself was invisible from the road below, but his shadow brought a swift whispered name to Jim's lips: "Martell!"

Within the room the hum of voices stopped dead. Then one of the curtains was pulled back from the window and a man's face appeared, the dark swarthy face of a man perhaps 35, peering out suspiciously. Jim had drawn back into the shadow outside the radius of light from the window.

And his face had suddenly gone very startled.

On the sloping ceiling the table lamp flung the shadow of a second person in that upper room. The man himself was invisible from the road below, hidden by the half-drawn curtains—but his shadow, monstrous and distorted on that white background, brought a swift whispered name to Jim's lips:

"Martell!"

DAYLIGHT

Almost as surely as though he had seen, not merely that fantastically distorted shadow, but the man himself, Jim Wynter, with his startled eyes held by that silhouetted profile on the sloping ceiling, knew that it was Dr. Martell's.

And if Martell, then of course that figure he had caught sight of for a second at Beggar's Court had been Martell, too—and the only question that remained was why Martin had lied with such glib smoothness to hide the fact.

Wynter nodded to himself. He was beginning to see daylight.

For a moment or two the man at the window stared down into the darkness with puzzled, half suspicious eyes. Then, evidently without discerning that watching figure in the gloom below, he pulled the curtains together across the window again, blotting out that tell-tale shadow.

Wynter turned away. That sudden impulse that had drawn him back to obtain a glimpse of the whistling man had brought a strangely unexpected result. Dr. Martell down here—Martell very much at home at Beggar's Court and Martin clearly in league with him to keep the fact dark. All very queer—and all very significant!

As he walked back to the car he met Bill Grayson coming in search of him. Milly was impatient to be moving.

"Sorry if I've kept you. I've been making discoveries, Bill—uncommonly queer discoveries. But I'll tell you later."

They drove on to Trayne. During the short run of three miles Katharine had a rather preoccupied companion. Martell had become a suddenly mysterious figure, to loom very largely in Jim Wynter's thoughts. That half-smoked cigaret he had picked up on the steps leading down to the vault—could there be any doubt now who had dropped it there?

CONFIRMED SUSPICIONS

At Trayne, whilst the other three went into the house agent's to settle about Manorways, Jim slipped off in search of a telephone call office. It had been a doubtful possibility whether he would find the Cross Keys Inn in the telephone book, but a search rewarded his hope. He rang up the inn.

"Hello. Cross Keys speaking. Who are you?" a voice demanded over the wire.

"Is Dr. Martell still there?

Jim wanted to make absolutely sure.

"Who are you, please?"

The speaker's tones suddenly sounded half suspicious.

Jim had disguised his natural voice. "Martin," this impostor said, "speaking from Beggar's Court."

"Oh, you're Martin? Right-o. Hold on a minute."

A few moments later a familiar voice came over the telephone, Martell's unmistakable voice asking:

"Well, what is it, Martin? Coast clear at Beggar's Court?"

So Martell wondered if "the coast was clear" at Beggar's Court!

"The visitors have just gone, sir"—Jim Wynter began, doing his best to imitate Martin's expressionless tones.

It was a changed voice that broke swiftly across his words, a voice suddenly tense with suspicion:

"Who are you? You're not Martin!"

Leaving this question unanswered, Jim hung up the receiver. He must not give the man a chance of recognizing his voice, to be put on his guard. And he had definitely confirmed that suspicion.

TWO GROUPS OF DEMOCRATS LISTED; ONE FOR NEWT BAKER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—There are two groups of Democrats in Ohio today.

One is made up of "doubting Thomases" who are not yet willing to admit that Ohio will send a delegation to the Democratic national convention next June that will back the nomination of former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of Cleveland for president of the United States.

The other consists of enthusiastic admirers of Baker whose remarkable declarations [illegible] that the Buckeye state will pick a delegation of Baker men. The [illegible] primaries made it [illegible] who prefer Baker as the presidential nominee.

Among the [illegible] ardent admirers of Governor White was [illegible] the [illegible] Ohio's [illegible] chosen as the [illegible] falling in [illegible] be selected as [illegible]

A prominent [illegible] with [illegible] frankly [illegible] that the [illegible] toward a [illegible] by means of which the Buckeye state delegation would [illegible] a "complete slate" prior to a presidential [illegible] on the first ballot, possibly [illegible] and then switch to Baker.

Some of the governor's fervid supporters for the present at least frown upon the "compromise" suggestion. They insist that a delegation be chosen by Ohio Democrats which will consistently "stand by the governor."

These White supporters are insisting that, if he fails to win the presidential nomination, the governor be selected as the running mate for the man chosen by the convention as the party's nominee for president.

If Baker was nominated for the presidency, White, of course, would not be nominated for the vice presidency, the delegates for governor at large, besides other persons being forced to go to some other state for their vice presidential nominee.

A number of Governor White's friends are hoping that if the [illegible] unable to get the presidential nomination [illegible] go to [illegible] Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York or some other [illegible] Democrat outside of Ohio, in the hope that the vice presidency might fall to Governor White.

Democrats who are not averse to the selection of Baker for the presidency today expressed considerable satisfaction over the recent declaration by Baker that it is his desire that the delegation from Ohio should go to the Democratic convention pledged to Governor White."

They characterized Baker's statement as "very tactful." Such a public attitude on Baker's part, they asserted, tended to win support at the convention for Baker on the part of the Ohio delegation in the event that White failed to develop sufficient strength to put him in the running for a place on the national ticket.

Odds and Ends

A good kicker has more friends on the gridiron than on the diamond.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Charles Butterworth was born in South Bend, Indiana, on July 26, 1896. He received his high school education there and attended Notre Dame University from where he emerged with a degree in law. The study of law was to appease his parents, for he had no desire for the profession. Instead, he was much interested in dramatics and took part in all campus productions.

His brilliant humor coupled with his immobile, unsmiling face won the appreciative attention of the critics who hailed him as one of the rarest comedians on the American stage. Parts in other stage productions soon followed, and Butterworth found a coveted niche in musical comedy. His best stage work, and the part he liked best, was in "Sweet Adeline," in which he appeared with Helen Morgan.

He was discovered by Warner Bros., who took him to Hollywood where he played in "Life of the Party" with Winnie Lightner, and in "Illicit," with Barbara Stanwyck. Following these two productions, he returned to complete his tour of "Sweet Adeline" on the stage. This finished his connection with the stage, and he again returned to the coast to take a featured role in First National's "The Bargain."

Mr. Butterworth is five feet, seven inches tall, weighs one hundred and thirty-seven pounds and has blue eyes and brown hair.

AT THE GRAND

As ringleader of the child gang seen in "The Spy," Fox movietone drama of intrigue in Russia, opening at the Grand Theatre next Wednesday, Milton Holmes portrays a role that is almost unbelievable to American audiences.

The "bezprizorni," meaning shelterless, is the name given to the army of thousands of homeless children who drift about modern Russia. They constitute one of the greatest problems facing the Soviets.

Freddie Frederick, as the son of Kay Johnson and Neil Hamilton, the romantic leads of the picture, falls in with these street urchins when his mother is thrown into prison by the "Tchekist" spy, portrayed by John Halliday.

The children live together in a roof-top hideout, roaming the streets in the daytime to sing and dance for pennies, and to steal and beg for straw morsels of food.

Berthold Viertel directed "The Spy."

Don't Regard Sinusitus As a Trivial Infection

Neglect of This Condition Leaves the Sufferer with an Increased Tendency to Colds and Other Ailments, Says Authority, Urging Early Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"SINUSITIS," or inflammation of the nasal sinuses, is a common ailment. It causes pain or discomfort in the face, the forehead and particularly around the eyes. There is a heavy feeling in the morning which subsides later in the day.

Dr. Copeland

It is rarely seen by the physician in the acute stage. Consequently it quickly becomes chronic and then requires prolonged treatment. If every case of sinusitis were cared for in the early stage, the cure would be more easily obtained.

Sinusitis should never be neglected. It is a disease which may appear trivial, but often it has a marked effect upon the happiness of the individual. There is an increased tendency to colds and other diseases. Ultimately the victim may be compelled to stay away from work and because of this his earning power is reduced.

There are various causes for sinus infection. The lining of the nasal passages and of the sinuses themselves are constantly moist and warm. This favors the harboring and growth of germs. When once the germs get into the sinus cavities they find favorable surroundings for their unpleasant activity.

Such infections may come from diseased teeth. More frequently they follow attacks of colds and coryza, influenza, pneumonia and other acute infectious diseases.

Before the onset of several common diseases there is likely to be an inflammation of the nose. Even though there is speedy recovery from the original ailment, the patient may be left with a sinus trouble.

Symptoms of Sinusitis

Swimming and diving in water that is too cold may be followed by a sinus infection. A very common cause is swimming in pools that are contaminated by germs. One person who has an acute cold may infect an entire pool.

The most common signs of sinus infection are headache or pain. This pain is usually in the face, the eyes, over the forehead or occasionally at the back of the head. As a rule, there is a discharge from the nose or throat.

In this condition there may be a temporary loss of the sense of smell. Dizziness and disturbances in the ear, as well as an upset stomach, are common symptoms.

If you have pain in your forehead, eyeache or any complaint in the region of the face, do not trust to your own devices. Do not decide that your trouble is due to eye trouble or toothache. Consult your physician, who will advise you.

Personnal Experience

A young man from Lowell, Mass., has sailed his 32-foot sailboat into New York harbor after voyaging all the way around the world in it; and the New York newspapers, quite naturally, sent reporters to meet him, and give him plenty of space in which to describe his adventures.

A three-year voyage around the globe in a tiny ketch certainly ought to provide a lot of conversational material. But the most interesting thing about the published interviews with the young man is that he seems to have had a very hard time giving an intimate, realistic account of his adventures.

To be sure, he told in detail just where he went and what he did. He mentioned an attack by pirates in the Red Sea, a sojourn in the South Sea islands, an incident in which a steamer nearly ran him down, a first-hand glimpse at such things as whales and frigate birds and volcanos and waterspouts, and the like; but somehow the things we would really like to know—how it feels to be alone in mid-Pacific, what a tropic dawn looks like in Samoa, what a man thinks about on a trip of that kind— they were left out.

If you are at all familiar with travelogues of this kind, you will realize at once that that is the way it usually it. These chaps who make unspeakably ramonce trips to far places never, or a almost never, seem able to get the essence of their voyaging into their narratives.

They give, instead, catalogs of things seen and itineraries of places visited and all the while they know that they are not really getting over the true significance of their experiences at all.

For the real inwardness of any bit of romantic adventure is a secret that is almost impossible to communicate. It has to do with something that happens within.

Many persons would like to know what Drake saw in the Pacific, and what dream dazzled Raleigh in the South American jungle, and how Marco Polo felt when he entered the Asian interior, but they never shall. Those who are lucky enough to get in on such things are seldom able to tell about them afterward.

Maps Too Complete

IT is interesting to learn that the map which Christopher Columbus used on his third voyage to America has come to light in a Turkish museum, and will shortly be given to the world.

There is a world of romance in maps, especially in very old ones; and the map which carries great blank spaces along its borders, indicating that the cartographer did not know what lay behind the horizon, can call forth endless dreams.

That, of course, was the kind of map Columbus used. On his first voyage maps were of little use to him. He expected to fetch up against the Asiatic coastline somewhere, and he probably had such charts of China, Malaya and India as fifteenth century Spain could provide. But all the way thither was a mysterious and unknown as the other side of the moon. What good is a map to a man who charts a course due west into a shoreless sea?

By the time he made his third trip, of course, he probably had a more or less makeshift set of charts. He knew, at least, that sooner or later he would make a more or less familiar landfall. Somewhere ahead there were islands and channels he had seen before.

But all the rest was darkness. To the north and south stretched almost infinite reaches of empty ocean, which might conceal anything from the lost Atlantis to the Happy Isles that Ulysses sailed for. What, one wonders, did the old navigator think, what sort of speculation took hold of him, as he sat in his dim-lit, creaking cabin, a chair braced against the bulkhead for security, and studied his incamplete map?

The world shall never know, of course. Sea-faring men are seldom communicative, and Columbus was no exception. But since that is a closed book, the next best thing is a glimpse at the map he used; and the man who could not pore over it by the hour, lost in dreams, has no appreciation of romance.

One trouble with the world today, you see, is that maps are too complete. Around the poles there are dwindling white spaces, and Asia and South America still have small areas that are unknown. But for the most part every headland has been charted, every moutain range has been filled in, every river bed has been traced. What wouldn't man give for a map that was half empty!

May Explain Jap Actions

ONE important point to remember in studying the movements of the Japanese army in and about Manchuria, is that the Jananese war department operates under a setup totally unlike that of any other modern nation.

In every other great power, the premier and parliament have complete, continuous control over the actions of their fighting men. Through hysteria or incompetence they may occasionally lose control, of course—as actually happened in at least two European countries when the World war was about to begin; but legally they are in complete charge.

In Japan it is different. The army is answerable only to the emperor. It is a separate department of government. In an emergency like this the cabinet has very little real control. This may help to explain why its actions occasionally fail to jibe with the promises issued at Tokio.

"The CZARINA'S RUBIES"

by Sidney Warwick

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST

Katharine Faring, granddaughter of a Russian prince, is the rightful owner of the missing Czarina rubies of sinister fame and fabulous value. Trying to recover them for her, Paul Federoff is murdered at Monksilver, a vacant country house, and Frank Severn is kidnaped and carried there unconscious. His servant, Creyke, is murdered.

Jim Wynter, friend of Severn and of Katharine, tries to rescue Severn, is injured and drugged and awakens in the home of mysterious Dr. Martell. Recovering, he takes Katharine and his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grayson, to Severn's country home, Beggar's Court. There a search reveals a concealed stairway and a locked door in the ruins of an ancient chapel. The stub of one of Dr. Martell's cigarets lies on the stairs.

Sant, Severn's lawyer, reluctantly agrees that the door be forced and goes to engage a blacksmith. Wynter and Grayson encounter in a nearby village a man Grayson recognizes as a former Sing Sing convict. Returning to Beggar's Court they find a wall of the ruin collapsed and the secret stairway buried.

NOW GO ON

The man himself was invisible from the road below, but his shadow brought a swift whispered name to Jim's lips: "Martell!"

CHAPTER XXXIII

Bill Grayson glanced round from the seat in front as the country road merged into the straggling village street.

"We shall want a spot of petrol before we go much further. Know of any filling station hereabouts, Jim?"

"Yes; just around the corner beyond the Cross Keys."

The Cross Keys was the village inn, its lighted windows now gleaming ahead of them through the deepening dusk—a big old-fashioned place with great stone cellars that a century back when smuggling had been a popular illicit trade in this corner of Essex, had harbored the fruits of many a successful "run" at the estuary to Mead's End.

REMINDER

The night was very still and as Milly drove by, from an upper window of the inn a sound floated down to them in passing—a sound that in a flash carried Jim Wynter's mind startlingly back to Monksilver, where in the blind night of that empty house he had come upon mystery, terror and death.

Just some one, invisible behind the curtains of that half-open window, whistling the air of a song from a revue running at one of the theaters—but enough to bring a startled gleam of rememberance to Jim's eyes.

The same air that he had heard an unseen man whistle that night at Monksilver—that man whose face would still be that of the veriest stranger, though he had heard and would know the voice again, with whom he had fought in the darkness of that perilous house.

The car shot past and round the corner, to draw up for petrol outside the lighted row of pumps of the garage there. On a sudden impulse Jim got out whilst the car's tank was being replenished, and with a word to the others strode back to where the lights of the Cross Keys gleamed out into the dark.

He wanted to see the face of the man who had whistled that air.

Not that Jim Wynter had really any expectation that that man behind the upper window could be that unknown antagonist of Monksilver . . . no doubt so popular an air was being whistled all over England. And yet——

And yet those events at Monksilver, Severn's capture and Creyke's death, were so closely associated with a house less than a mile from the Cross Keys . . .

As he stood looking up at that window, the whistling broke off abruptly. Faintly he heard the hum of voices in the room. In the deserted village street Jim picked up a pebble and threw it up at the window. It struck the glass with a sharp tinkle.

Within the room the hum of voices stopped dead. Then one of the curtains was pulled back from the window and a man's face appeared, the dark swarthy face of a man perhaps 35, peering out suspiciously. Jim had drawn back into the shadow outside the radius of light from the window.

And his face had suddenly gone very startled.

On the sloping ceiling the table lamp flung the shadow of a second person in that upper room. The man himself was invisible from the road below, hidden by the half-drawn curtains—but his shadow, monstrous and distorted on that white background, brought a swift whispered name to Jim's lips:

"Martell!"

DAYLIGHT

Almost as surely as though he had seen, not merely that fantastically distorted shadow, but the man himself, Jim Wynter, with his startled eyes held by that silhouetted profile on the sloping ceiling, knew that it was Dr. Martell's.

And if Martell, then of course that figure he had caught sight of for a second at Beggar's Court had been Martell, too—and the only question that remained was why Martin had lied with such glib smoothness to hide the fact.

Wynter nodded to himself. He was beginning to see daylight.

For a moment or two the man at the window stared down into the darkness with puzzled, half suspicious eyes. Then, evidently without discerning that watching figure in the gloom below, he pulled the curtains together across the window again, blotting out that tell-tale shadow.

Wynter turned away. That sudden impulse that had drawn him back to obtain a glimpse of the whistling man had brought a strangely unexpected result. Dr. Martell down here—Martell very much at home at Beggar's Court and Martin clearly in league with him to keep the fact dark. All very queer—and all very significant!

As he walked back to the car he met Bill Grayson coming in search of him. Milly was impatient to be moving.

"Sorry if I've kept you. I've been making discoveries, Bill — uncommonly queer discoveries. But I'll tell you later."

They drove on to Trayne. During the short run of three miles Katharine had a rather preoccupied companion. Martell had become a suddenly mysterious figure, to loom very largely in Jim Wynter's thoughts. That half-smoked cigaret he had picked up on the steps leading down to the vault—could there be any loubt now who had dropped it there?

CONFIRMED SUSPICIONS

At Trayne, whilst the other three went into the house agent's to settle about Manorways, Jim slipped off in search of a telephone call office. It had been a doubtful possibility whether he would find the Cross Keys Inn in the telephone book, but a scarch rewarded his hope. He rang up the inn.

"Hello. Cross Keys speaking. Who are you?" a voice demanded over the wire.

"Is Dr. Martell still there?

Jim wanted to make absolutely sure.

"Who are you, please?"

The speaker's tones suddenly sounded half suspicious.

Jim had disguised his natural voice. "Martin," this impostor said, "speaking from Beggar's Court."

"Oh, you're Martin? Right-o. Hold on a minute."

A few moments later a familiar voice came over the telephone, Martell's unmistakable voice asking:

"Well, what is it, Martin? Coast clear at Beggar's Court?"

So Martell wondered if "the coast was clear" at Beggar's Court!

"The visitors have just gone, sir" —Jim Wynter began, doing his best to imitate Martin's expressionless tones.

It was a changed voice that broke swiftly across his words, a voice suddenly tense with suspicion:

"Who are you? You're not Martin!"

Leaving the question unanswered, Jim hung up the receiver. He must not give the man a chance of recogniing his voice, to be put on his guard. And he had definitely confirmed that suspicion.

TWO GROUPS OF DEMOCRATS LISTED; ONE FOR NEWT BAKER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—There are two groups of Democrats in Ohio today.

One is made up of "doubting Thomases" who are not yet willing to admit that Ohio will send a delegation to the Democratic national convention next June that will seek the nomination of former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, for president of the United States.

The other comprises outspoken admirers of Baker whose optimistic declarations indicate the belief that the Buckeye state Democracy will pick a delegation at the May primaries made up of Democrats who prefer Baker for the presidential nomination.

Among the first group are ardent admirers of Governor George White who cherish the desire that Ohio's chief executive be chosen as the presidential nominee, or, failing in that ambition, that he be selected as Democracy's candidate for vice president.

A prominent Democrat, actively identified with the state organization, frankly admitted, however, that the present trend seemed to be toward a "compromise" by means of which the Buckeye state delegation would give Governor White a "complimentary" vote as a presidential candidate on the first and, possibly, second ballots and then switch to Baker.

Some of the governor's fervid supporters—for the present at least—frown upon the "compromise" suggestion. They insist that a delegation be chosen by Ohio Democrats which will consistently "stand by the governor."

These White supporters are hopeful that, if he fails to win the presidential nomination, the governor be selected as the running mate for the man chosen by the convention as the party's nominee for president.

If Baker was nominated for the presidency, White, of course, would not be nominated for the presidency, the delegates, for geographical and, possibly, other reasons, being forced to go to some other state for their vice presidential nominee.

A number of Governor White's friends are hoping that, if the governor is unable to win the presidential nomination that it go to Governor Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, or some other prominent Democrat outside of Ohio in order that the vice presidential nomination might fall to Governor White.

Democrats who are not averse to the selection of Baker for the presidency today expressed considerable satisfaction over the recent declaration by Baker that it is his "wish" that "the delegation from Ohio should go to the Democratic convention pledged to Governor White."

They characterized Baker's statement as "very tactful." Such a public attitude on Baker's part, they asserted, tended to win support at the convention for Baker on the part of the Ohio delegation in the event that White failed to develop sufficient strength to put him in the running for a place on the national ticket.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Charles Butterworth was born in South Bend, Indiana, on July 26, 1899. He received his high school education there and attended Notre Dame University from where he emerged with a degree in law. The study of law was to appease his parents, for he had no desire for the profession. Instead, he was much interested in dramatics and took part in all campus productions.

His brilliant humor coupled with his immobile, unsmiling face won the appreciative attention of the critics who hailed him as one of the rarest comedians on the American stage. Parts in other stage productions soon followed, and Butterworth found a coveted niche in musicel comedy. His best stage work, and the part he liked best, was in "Sweet Adeline," in which he appeared with Helen Morgan.

He was discovered by Warner Bros., who took him to Hollywood where he played in "Life of the Party" with Winnie Lightner, and in "Illicit," with Barbara Stanwyck. Following these two productions, he returned to complete his tour of "Sweet Adeline" on the stage. This finished his connection with the stage, and he again returned to the coast to take a featured role in First National's "The Bargain."

Mr. Butterworth is five feet, seven inches tall, weighs one hundred and thirty-seven pounds and has blue eyes and brown hair.

AT THE GRAND

As ringleader of the child gang seen in "The Spy," Fox movietone drama of intrigue in Russia, opening at the Grand Theatre next Wednesday, Milton Holmes portrays a role that is almost unbelievable to American audiences.

The "bezprizorni," meaning shelterless, is the name given to the army of thousands of homeless children who drift about modern Russia. They constitute one of the greatest problems facing the Soviets.

Freddie Frederick, as the son of Kay Johnson and Neil Hamilton, the romantic leads of the picture, falls in with these street urchins when his mother is thrown into prison by the "Tchekist" spy, portraved by John Halliday.

The children live together in a roof-top hideout, roaming the streets in the daytime to sing and dance for pennies and to steal and beg for straw morsels of food.

Berthold Viertel directed "The Spy."

Don't Regard Sinusitus As a Trivial Infection

Neglect of This Condition Leaves the Sufferer with an Increased Tendency to Colds and Other Ailments, Says Authority, Urging Early Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"SINUSITIS," or inflammation of the nasal sinuses, is a common ailment. It causes pain or discomfort in the face, the forehead and particularly around the eyes. There is a heavy feeling in the morning which subsides later in the day.

It is rarely seen by the physician in the acute stage. Consequently it quickly becomes chronic and then requires prolonged treatment. If every case of sinusitis were cared for in the early stage, the cure would be more easily obtained.

Sinusitis should never be neglected. It is a disease which may appear trivial, but often it has a marked effect upon the happiness of the individual. There is an increased tendency to colds and other diseases. Ultimately the victim may be compelled to stay away from work and because of this his earning power is reduced.

There are various causes for sinus infection. The lining of the nasal passages and of the sinuses themselves are constantly moist and warm. This favors the harboring and growth of germs. When once the germs get into the sinus cavities they find favorable surroundings for their unpleasant activity.

Such infections may come from diseased teeth. More frequently they follow attacks of colds and coryza, influenza, pneumonia and other acute infectious diseases.

Before the onset of several common diseases there is likely to be an inflammation of the nose. Even though there is speedy recovery from the original ailment, the patient may be left with a sinus trouble.

Symptoms of Sinusitis

Swimming and diving in water that is too cold may be followed by a sinus infection. A very common cause is swimming in pools that are contaminated by germs. One person who has an acute cold may infect an entire pool.

The most common signs of sinus infection are headache or pain. This pain is usually in the face, the eyes, over the forehead or occasionally at the back of the head. As a rule, there is a discharge from the nose or throat.

In this condition there may be a temporary loss of the sense of smell. Dizziness and disturbances in the ear, as well as an upset stomach, are common symptoms.

If you have pain in your forehead, eyeache or any complaint in the region of the face, do not trust to your own devices. Do not decide that your trouble is due to eye trouble or toothache. Consult your physician, who will advise you.

BUSINESS FORECAST FOR 1932 IS MADE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—The year 1932, in my judgment, will be one of final readjustment to the new price levels with a subsequent although gradual upturn in volume and profits in business. It is exceedingly difficult for any business to show profits in its annual statement if all of its inventory has to be written down to lower price levels at the end of the year Therefore, when commodity prices have become stabilized, or if the index slightly increases, the best managed business enterprises will again show profits.

Profits are the incentive to increased operations These increased operations mean greater employment and restoration of the purchasing power of the public. Thus the cycle is started for a return to more prosperous conditions.

SEES NO MAGIC

This statement, however should not be construed as meaning that any bit of magic is to be performed in suddenly bringing about a restoration of more normal conditions. Records of the State Industrial Commission, as well as the United States Department of Labor, already indicate that the month of January, February and March in any year constitute a period of considerable unemployment. With basic conditions as they are, the next three months are far from promising. I take it for granted that many people will, during that time, believe that conditions have grown worse rather than better. However, I am confident that the underlying structure is more sound now than it has been for two years.

We can naturally expect a seasonal pickup in business about April 1. Building construction, highway building and maintenance, farm work, public utility developments, governmental and public works, and other enterprises will get under way, which cannot be carried on during the winter season. They will give employment to a very large number of workers and add their purchasing power to the better business movement

If the aspects of the 1932 presidential election are not too menacing, I would expect a business upturn of no small proportions by the middle of the summer. Capital and business enterprise naturally study these aspect and are more hesitant if prospective governmental policies are harassing. Business will carefully scrutinize the platforms of the leading parties during the next year and will guage the general attitude of the leading candidates toward business. If it is taken for granted that a president will be elected whose views are not inimical to the best interests of business, the election will not retard the return to prosperity during 1932.

SHOWS OPTIMISIM

This forecast of conditions is moderately optimistic and I do not believe that there is any good reason to think that the upturn in business will not occur However, we are all aware of disturbing elements which are with us now and which, in my judgment, are not likely to get worse. There are very material evidences of an easing of the credit situation. If this improvement, supported by the National Credit Corporation, does not continue, we may look to Congress to take some action which will rectify the trouble. We are also cognizant of the disturbing situation in Germany with the possibility of revolution; the serious plight in which England has found herself which made it necessary to abandon the gold standard, the conflict in Manchuria involving elements which may make for greater instead of less disturbance the anticipated new revolutionary disturbance in India due to the failure of the London conference, and other international problems of [illegible] consequence If any of these should develop so seriously as to become a menace to peace throughout the rest of the world, that fact would be the cause of further retardition of recovery of business. However, it should be borne in mind that when business conditions are improving, such disturbances as those referred to invariably tend to rectification instead of getting worse.

PICKAWAY P. T. A. HAS INTERESTING PROGRAM

The 125 persons present at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association at Pickaway-twp school Tuesday evening were delighted with the entire program of which Rev. George L. Troutman's address on "The Marvels of Nature," excellently presented, an outstanding feature.

Rev. H. H. Abel conducted the Devotional services in a very pleasing manner. Other numbers on the program included a vocal solo by Rosemary Boggs, a piano trio by Eleanor Eyer and Virginia Dreisbach and a clarinet duet by George and Donald Miller. Miss Mary Radcliffe accompanied Rosemary and Eleanor Dreisbach and the Miller brothers. The school orchestra opened and closed the program.

The eighth grade was decided winner of the membership contest and was awarded a subscription to the National Geographic. The sixth grade came in for second place

The ways and means committee adopted a unique plan for raising money this year. Since there is plenty of corn, each family, who wishes to help with the worthwhile program of the P. T. A., is asked to donate a few bushels of corn for which Mr. Boggs will pay a premium By this plan donations will help in a double manner Those who can, are requested to bring their corn to the school building Saturday morning before noon where one of Mr Boggs' trucks will be ready to receive it. Those who prefer may take it directly to the elevator. Persons who cannot bring or send their donations are requested to notify the superintendent or some other P. T. A. member, and someone will call for it

Those who do not have corn to donate, money or some other saleable products will be accepted The entire proceeds of these donations will be used in Pickaway-twp to help those who need it most.

FORTY ATTEND BIBLE CLASS MEETING

Forty members and guests were present at the monthly meeting of the Young Ladies Bible class of the Methodist Episcopal church held in the church parlors Tuesday evening.

After a short business session a delightful Christmas program in charge of Mrs. T. E. Cromley was presented: Following a song, "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" by Mrs Cromley's Sunday school class a recitation "I Want Something Different" was given by Bobby Cromley. Preceding a reading, "Them Old Cheery Words" by Edna Shaw, Jane Littleton played a piano solo. "Melody in F." A duet "Peace and Good Will" sung by Theda Anderson and Dorothy Beaty accompanied by Mrs. Cromley was enjoyed. After a Christmas Bible story told by Laura Jean Cook, the song, "We, Three Kings of Orient Are" was rendered by the members of Mrs Cromley's class. A reading, "The Christ Child and the Pine Tree" by Evelyn Wolfe concluded the interesting program

During a pleasant social hour refreshments were served by the committee composed of Mrs. Robert Denman, Chairman, Mrs H. H Taylor, Mrs. Harry Clifton, Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Frank Goff and Mrs. T E. Cromley.

ROUND ROBIN CONTESTS ON

Columbia, Cornell, Princeton, Pennsylvania To Meet In Yankee Stadium.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Football teams of Columbia, Cornell, Princeton and Pennsylvania battle in Yankee stadium today in a round robin tourney for charity.

Cornell is favored to win the afternoon's honors, having defeated this season each of the other elevens, none even being able to score on Coach Gil Dobies' squad.

Proceeds will be divided among the four colleges, to be distributed to charity by their presidents as they see fit.

A drawing of opponents will be made by the toss of a coin. Games of 24 minutes will be played by four teams, the winners of the initial frays meeting in a deciding tilt.

A committee of experts will determine the winners in the event of tie games.

A crowd of at least 30,000 was looked for at the stadium. Ticket prices are $3, $2 and $1.

Some of the leading eastern players will be seen in action during the afternoon.

Bart Viviano and Jack Ferraro, regarded by some critics as two outstanding eastern backs, will play with Carnell. Captain Ralph Hewitt will lead the Columbia eleven. Jack James, Princeton backfield ace, is suffering from a slight injury but will play part of the game.

Carl Perina, Penn fullback and star of the Philadelphia eleven, will also be on view.

HUNTER IS VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

[illegible]

Mother Martha Shops-

Christmas isn't Christmas any more unless something new in electrical appliances is found under the tree. And every housewife can tell you how much extra time and energy she has because of some electrical convenience in her home. I remember my very first—and I think my most practical many years ago. It was an electric washer. If there are still women without them they must be sorely tried. I have had to have several new ones, with my big washings.

Almost my first Christmas shopping is to discover what is new and fine in household electrical helps. Of course ,the washing machine, iron, and vacuum cleaner have come to be as important in a home as dishes. The Pettit Tire Company which prefers selling Maytag washers to any others, has them at $79.50. The Maytags have the popular swing release wringer and Pettit's give service on the machines indefinitely. The Southern Ohio Electric Company has the Voss washers for only $59.50. They have had no trouble with them at all because they are so serviceable. I found five makes of irons and the General Electric vacuum cleaner at the last named company also.

John, my oldest boy, went with me on this tour. He wished to show me what he wanted at Seitz' and I wished to show him what I wanted electrically. My turn came first. It is an egg-cooker, a beautiful little black and aluminum affair on a tray with four egg-glasses. It cooks the eggs instantly with steam pressure to a one, two, three or four minute doneness, as you wish. The price is $6.95. And we girls promised Mother who is a model cook, a kitchen motor with its innumerable attachments for Christmas, this year. It costs $37.50 and it is worth it. Those are just two of the things discovered at the S O Electric Co. John says the children want to get Dorothy a hair-dryer and I picked up a bargain counter waffle-iron for her. But there are so many things. Sometime, I should like an ironing machine Prices range from $79.50 to $129.00. And it would be heavenly to own a sun lamp They cost from $29.50 to $59.50 and are worth their weight in health.

"How dear to the heart" of any woman are the new electric refrigerators I don't know what I should do without mine now. Virginia's husband is getting her one for Christmas He chose a Norge because of its simplicity, its low cost of operation and the low-rate installment plan. I have a Majestic myself, and wouldn't change, but there are a great many who prefer the General Electric to any.

And radios Well, what home is complete without a radio nowadays? And incie is one of every make for every pocketbook. Pettit's sell the Philco and Atwater-Kent. The prices run from $36.50 in the small seven-tube sets to $89.75 in the nine-tube cabinet sets, for Philco The Atwater-Kent seven-tube cabinet sets are priced from $59.00 to $96.00. The Majestic, sold by the Moffitt Electric Company is well-made and reasonably priced. There is one model, the Fyfewood, Model 154, that appeals to me. It is a boxed end-table of Duncan Fyfe type with brass claw-tipped feet. Only $64.50. And of course there are lower and much higher priced Majestics. We have a R. C. A. Victor radio which we bought at Seitz', last year. It is quite a lovely lowboy model and we are proud of it. Helen and Jim have a clever G. E. Grandfather Clock Radio of Georgian type which costs $179.00 It is a beauty. Virginia and Ted also have a G. E. but it is tiny The price of it was only $84.50 and it is the size of a mantel clock with the electric clock and radio both in its small box. And speaking of radios, they must be in the best condition for the holidays. Seitz Company has installed the new Acremeter which tests every minute detail of the condition of your tubes. And you can see the result as well as the manager. I must take ours down soon, now, or "let George do it."

And at Seitz' John showed me at once the classy red Harold Teen ukelele with funny paper characters jiggling all over it. I wouldn't mind having one myself. They are $4.50 and there are others as low-priced as $1.75. He bought Henry a 50-cent mouth harp and Marion five new pieces of popular music at 30 cents per. Marion is our musician. She has a saxophone and a violin from Seitz' and I promised her that black and white guitar, $6.50, this year Our music store features the Conn, Pan-American and Cavalier brass instruments and Ludwig drums. For the boy in the jazz orchestra, your gift problem is solved here. Jeanette has a birthday January 5th, and we are going to get her a complete violin outfit for $12.50. But I have sung my song long enough I am now signing off.

Mother Martha.

realize $902,000,000 next year and thus meet the conditions of balancing the budget for the fiscal year 1933, except for the statutory debt retirement. It would balance the budget, including debt retirement, in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933. It would provide about $390,000,000 for the current year, leaving us with the necessity of borrowing an amount which will represent a net increase in the public debt of about $1,320,000,000."

HAS ADVANTAGE

The plan of approximately re-enacting the 1924 law, he said, has the advantages that both the government and the public are familiar with it.

"The public has paid such taxes in the past," the president continued, "and has found them not intolerable and has found that they do not prevent increased prosperity. By providing a definite date for termination of the temporary increase it will allow tax-payers to look forward to definite relief.

"I further recommend that Congress inquire into the economic effect of the provisions of the present law relating to capital gains and losses."

Expenditures of $3,942,754,614 were estimated as necessary to operate the government during the next fiscal year This represented increases of $104,535,664 by some departments, and decreases of $156,807,584 by others, or a net of $52,371,920 below last year's budget.

Discovery Makes Possible

New Plan By Makers of Vicks VapoRub for

Better "Control-of-Colds"

Another advance in "Control-of-Colds" has been perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. A third of a century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern, external method of "treating" colds. Now, Vick Chemists introduce Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax"—in money, loss of time and health.

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds:"

1.—Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat — Nature's unmistakable warning that you are 'catching cold'—use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.

If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking, over-heated, overcrowded rooms, etc—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled freely all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of VapoRub).

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

The Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" has been tested—and proved. But the makers want all users of Vicks VapoRub to test it for themselves in their own homes. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops from your druggist today. Try the plan as directed. If results are not more than satisfactory, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

HUNTER IS VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

TIFFIN, O., Dec. 9.—Heart disease today was given as the cause of the death of Samuel Gibson, 67, retired oil gauger, who died suddenly while hunting in the High banks north of here last night.

When other hunters discovered Gibson's body with a gun at its side in the woods this morning, it was believed that he had been slain. Examination however showed he was a victim of a sudden heart attack.

Victor radio which we bought at Seitz', last year. It is quite a lovely lowboy model and we are proud of it. Helen and Jim have a clever G. E. Grandfather Clock Radio of Georgian type which costs $179.00. It is a beauty. Virginia and Ted also have a G. E. but it is tiny. The price of it was only $84.50 and it is the size of a mantel clock with the electric clock and radio both in its small box. And speaking of radios, they must be in the best condition for the holidays. Seitz Company has installed the new Acremeter which tests every minute detail of the condition of your tubes. And you can see the result as well as the manager. I must take ours down soon, now, or "let George do it."

And at Seitz' John showed me at once the classy red Harold Teen ukelele with funny paper characters jiggling all over it. I wouldn't mind having one myself. They are $4.50 and there are others as low-priced as $1.75. He bought Henry a 50-cent mouth harp and Marion five new pieces of popular music at 30 cents per. Marion is our musician. She has a saxophone and a violin from Seitz' and I promised her that black and white guitar, $6.50, this year. Our music store features the Conn, Pan-American and Cavalier brass instruments and Ludwig drums. For the boy in the jazz orchestra, your gift problem is solved here. Jeanette has a birthday January 5th, and we are going to get her a complete violin outfit for $12.50. But I have sung my song long enough. I am now signing off.

TAX INCREASE

realize $902,000,000 next year and thus meet the conditions of balancing the budget for the fiscal year 1933, except for the statutory debt retirement. It would balance the budget, including debt retirement, in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933. It would provide about $390,000,000 for the current year, leaving us with the necessity of borrowing an amount which will represent a net increase in the public debt of about $1,320,000,000."

HAS ADVANTAGE

The plan of approximately re-enacting the 1924 law, he said, has the advantages that both the government and the public are familiar with it.

"The public has paid such taxes in the past," the president continued, "and has found them not intolerable and has found that they do not prevent increased prosperity. By providing a definite date for termination of the temporary increase it will allow tax-payers to look forward to definite relief.

"I further recommend that Congress inquire into the economic effect of the provisions of the present law relating to capital gains and losses."

Expenditures of $3,942,754,614 were estimated as necessary to operate the government during the next fiscal year. This represented increases of $104,535,664 by some departments, and decreases of $156,807,584 by others, or a net of $52,371,920 below last year's budget.

OVERRULE JUDGE IN SHOPKEEPER CASE

AKRON, O., Dec. 9.—Furnishing ice and mixing liquids to customers who used them for making drinks with intoxicating liquor does not constitute a violation of law on the part of a shop-keeper the court of appeals ruled here today, reversing a decision of Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker who ruled that a restaurant owner was guilty of "aiding and abetting" in the violation of the prohibition law. The court declared that the judge's ruling was "contrary to law."

New Plan By Makers of Vicks VapoRub for

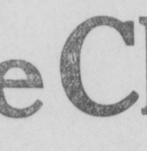
Better "Control-of-Colds"

Another advance in "Control-of-Colds" has been perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. A third of a century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern, external method of "treating" colds. Now, Vick Chemists introduce Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax"—in money, loss of time and health.

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds:"

1.—Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat — Nature's unmistakable warning that you are 'catching cold'—use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.



If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking, over-heated, over-crowded rooms, etc—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled freely all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of VapoRub).

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

The Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" has been tested—and proved. But the makers want all users of Vicks VapoRub to test it for themselves in their own homes. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops from your druggist today. Try the plan as directed. If results are not more than satisfactory, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.
